3 DEAD AS BLIZZARD PARALYZES CHICAGO

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

The man who says he never reads advertisements, either is a proper candidate for the Ananias club or is lacking in common business sense.

That is the way a big business man, the head of a successful corporation, put it in talking to his selling force, a few days ago.

Advertisements are concsulted by practical men and women just as the news and social pages of the newspaper are consuled for the information they contain.

Time was and not so very long ago, when the advertising pages were merely a directory of things for sale.

Today they rank side by side with the editorial pages in the vital interest of the messages they carry.

No part of a newspaper today is more carefully edited and more ruthlessly purged of unreliable statements than the pages that carry the advertising messages.

And so it is that today, as never before, men and women scan the advertising pages as carefully and with as deep an interest as they give to any other part of the newspaper.

You will find that the products that are most persistently and effectively advertised are almost universally the best and most dependable products.

An advertisement in a news paper is a pledge. The man who issues it puts himself on record. The public expects more of him—and almost invariably he measures up to expectations.

The above items were taken from a recent lecture by William S. Power, that impressed us enough to take notes.

We were reminded of it yesterday when we went through our mail and found a mass of junk offering to sell us everything from a patent medicine to an automobile.

And as we read some of them we wondered if their statemensts were of the type which the advertising departments of newspapers refused to publish. If they did, it was probably because the newspaper publisher was sure that he merchant couldn't or wouldn't back them up.

You can usually make up your mind that there is something out of order when a merchant litters up your mail box with propaganda which he is afraid to bring out in the open.

Statistics have proven time after time that newspaper advertising is the most effective. It brings more dollars into the merchant's cash register. Then the logical solution is that his advertising is of a nature that won't bear the acid test if he has to dish it up to you in gaudy circulars.

Think that over, read the newspaper advertisements and then see where the crowd goes.

9 Buried Alive By Earth Slide

MEXICO CITY, March 25.—UP—Nine laborers were buried alive when the Tecamachalco reservoir under construction at Tacuba, a suburb of the capital, collapsed today.

One side of the reservoir was loosened by digging and fell in an avalanche into the pit where 50 men were working.

One other was slightly injured as the tons of rocks and sand sluffed into the pit.

GIRL MARRIES TRADER TO PAY DEBT

Her mother dying, Stella Blackney takes charge of a hotel in Samora and runs it. In spite of the girl's best efforts, the hotel is going rapidly into debt and the girl seemed somewhat in the power of Tom Shane, a brutal trader.

This is the novel setting of "Isle of Escape," a 30 part serial story which starts this morning in the RECORD-HERALD.

The story was written by Jack McLaren and has won success in all parts of the United States. Recently the Warner Brothers adopted the story for the talking screen.

The story is well written and holds the reader's attention from the opening paragraph to the finish.

Dave Wade is the hero. He escapes from the cannibals and is washed up on the beach of Samora, more dead than alive. He has a bag of gold wrung from the gold fields of the interior and brought through the jungles at a great risk.

Shane discovers the gold and takes David to the barroom of his hotel and immediately proceeds to get David drunk in an effort to make him talk.

Stella comes to the rescue. She and her boys take David to her hotel and recovers the bag of gold from Shane.

As a result, Snane and David engage in a fight that ends with David winning a victory and Shane promising to "get" David.

It is then that Stella reveals to David that she married Shane to save her mother who was deeply in debt to Shane. The two flee to a distant island where they set up carry off Stella to a certain death and Shane reaches the island ready to kill David.

Then trouble starts. Cannibals a trading post.

But how this thrilling story ends can only be told in the words of the author.

ACTOR DRUNK AS WED, CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—UP—Helen Twelvetrees, screen actress, was granted a divorce here today from Clark Twelvetrees after she testified that he was intoxicated when they were married three years ago and had treated her cruelly since.

The decree was based on charges of mental cruelty, but Miss Twelvetrees said that her husband had beaten her and was a habitual drunkard.

"He was intoxicated when I married him and after the ceremony I did not seen him for two days," she told Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron. "I thought I could change him, but it was impossible. I finally left him after he had beaten me four times.

Miss Twelvetrees said that her husband once had leaped from a window of their room on the sixth floor of a New York hotel. He was intoxicated at the time, she said. In addition to the mental agony caused by the affair, she was forced to pay Twelvetrees' hospital bill the actress added.

NEW GERMAN SHIP SETS SPEED MARK

NEW YORK, March 25.—UP—Slipping swiftly through a dense fog, her two squat funnels spouting great columns of black smoke into the morning mist, the new North German Lloyd liner Europa swept past Ambrose lightship at 5:54 a. m. today to establish a new speed record for Atlantic crossings.

A thousand of her passengers ignored the drizzling rain and lined the deck rails to cheer as the old lightship hove into view, and a dozen tugboats scurried around the huge hull, puffing and whistling as the Europa swung into the channel of New York harbor. The great bulbous-nosed steamer had completed her voyage from Cherbourg to New York in four days, 17 hours and six minutes, clipping 18 minutes off the record set last October by her sister ship, the Bremen.

As the victorious Europa continued her course up the bay, her skipper, Commodore Nicolaus Johnsen, a six-foot, rosy-faced man with handlebar whiskers, stepped to a microphone and disturbed the nation's setting up exercises with a brief greeting. The commodore's words were broadcast through a national network of stations.

Ends Trip

The Europa, which is pronounced as if spelled Oiropa, was warped into her slip at Pier 4, Brooklyn, at 10:10 a. m.

Like her sister ship the Bremen, the Europa is built with a rounded

CLUES PROBED IN MURDER OF BEAUTY

GIRL SEEN IN TIFF WITH MAN

EUREKA, March 25.—UP—Two theories based upon association of beauty with romance were offered by authorities here today as likely to aid solution of the murder of a young woman, whose body was hidden in redwood forests 50 miles north of here eight weeks ago.

Confronted with the necessity of breaking down every element of mystery before they could produce a logical detailed account of the crime, officials of two counties could only start their investigation with the age-old belief that all beautiful women have romantic lives.

The victim was a Titan blonde, about 25 years of age. She was attired in fashionable clothes and an expensive fur coat. All marks of identification on the colthing were blurred by heavy rains since the body, with a bullet hole in the head, was dropped behind a redwood log, 10 feet off a highway.

Harry Roach, local insurance man, said tonight he believed the young woman was Mrs. Thelma Hughes, who conducted a restaurant in Arcata, eight miles north of here, until nearly two months ago. Roach said the descriptions tallied almost exactly. He added that the young woman left Arcata suddenly, going away in a coupe with a young man.

Three Theories

Therefore the theories announced by authorities were:

That a lover, as unknown as the name of the young woman, had quarreled with her, death ending the argument.

Pouring of concrete for the foundation and floor of the Filice and Perelli cannery on lower Tenth street will start this morning according to C. W. Older, engineeer and inspector for William Knowles, architect of the plant.

Piling has been driven for the entire area to be occupied by the cannery proper and the forms for this portion of the plant are two-thirds complete. Reinforcing is almost up with the forms and workers expect to keep ahead of the cement crew.

The pile driver is now busy sinking the piles for the portion of the site which will be occupied by the warehouse. These piles are being put down at the rate of 50 a day.

FOUR POWER PACT SEEN

LONDON, March 25.—UP— The United States is ready to enter a "consultative" pact with the other four naval powers represented here provided she is not obligated to use her armaments in guaranteeing the security of other nations, the American delegation announced in a statement to newspapermen tonight.

The statement added that if France's demand for security, in return for which she would be willing to reduce her tonnage requirements, could be satisfied by other means, "then the danger of misunderstanding in a consultative pact would be eliminated."

In such case the question would be approached from an entirely different standpoint and the American delegation would consider the matter with an open mind, said the statement, which was given out at the Ritz hotel.

The new approach suggested by the delegation was believed to refer to the possibility of British guaranteeing the security of France, at least to the extent of joining a non-aggression pact in the Mediterranean.

The statement was issued as comment on an article in the Daily Herald, Laborite newspaper, which said the Americans had changed their attitude toward a consultative pact.

The delegation emphasized that when the American position re-

SNOW HALTS MIDWEST TRAFFIC

CHICAGO, Mar. 25—(U.P)—The spectacle of a great city virtually paralyzed by the elements was presented tonight by Chicago, fighting vainly against the worst spring blizzard in fears.

The storm spread from Nebraska to Pennsylvania and centered in the Chicago area. A 60-mile an hour gale from off Lake Michigan sent heavy snow swirling into deep drifts to block streets, stop surface cars and make all other transportation hazardous and uncertain.

At least three deaths were attributed to the blizzard. Most sensational was that of an unidentified man attempting to walk against the gale down Michigan boulevard. When he passed the Drake hotel, the wind lifted him from his feet and sent him rolling before a heavy bus. The lumbering vehicle crushed him to death. The driver said snow was so thick on his windshield that he was unable to see.

A succession of wrecks helped demoralize Chicago elevated and street car lines. Five persons were injured and more than 200 were shaken up when a snow-blinded motorman crashed his "L" train into the rear of another blocked by the storm. Another "L" wreck tied up traffic on the other side of the city for hours.

Despite efforts of hundreds of snowplows and thousands of men, street car traffic was abandoned for a time throughout the city. So strong was the gale that the drifts formed again almost as soon as the snow plows removed them. More than 10 inches of snow had

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Will the Woman's Club Save the Home?

WITH their characteristic genius for minding women's business, men, not so many years ago, denounced that new but increasingly popular institution, the woman's club, as a "menace to the home."

"These clubwomen," men scolded, "will Neglect Their Husbands and Families." Men, of course, might and did go to their clubs night after night and maybe all night, to drink and play poker, yet The Home remained intact. But let women go of an afternoon, once or twice a month, to a decorous feminine assemblage, where somebody lectured on Browning or on civic welfare, and watch for The Home to crack from turret to foundation stone!

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

It would be funny if it weren't so ridiculous, all this early hostility and criticism which American women's clubs had to face and on which they throve mightily. Long ago, the American woman discovered that the secret of a successful life was to let her husband say what he pleased while she did what she pleased! So men scolded about women's clubs, women kept on forming and joining them—and The Home kept on doing business at the same old stand.

Then came the war. Then came jobs for large numbers of girls. Then came flaming youth. And now, lo and behold, the woman's club heaps coals of fire on the heads of the sex that traduced it! The woman's club is out to Protect The Home and The Husband!

Specifically, the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs now celebrates the first anniversary of the founding of its Home Making Centre, in the Grand Central Palace, with the ringing declaration that "men of to-day are not getting the same quality of domestic atmosphere in the homes they are establishing as existed in the homes of their parents," that Something Ought to Be Done and that they—the women's clubs—propose to do it! By one of life's charming ironies, women's clubs, once hailed as "home-wreckers," are now on the warpath to save the home!

EASTER and spring brides are the high point of attack in the club-women's new battle for more and better domesticity. In the words of Mrs. Charles E. Gregory, director of the Home Making Centre, "For the first time in history a generation has produced girls and young women who have never had training in home management. Such a situation is deplorable."

Therefore, free to all brides and brides-to-be—free to "old married women," for that matter—the Home Making Centre will give next month a complete home making course, with the aim "of bringing back to girls and women of eligible age the home consciousness which they are conceded upon all sides to lack to-day."

For "every man"—again we quote from his impassioned champions, New York clubwomen—"is entitled to home cooking and every other one of the subtle domestic touches that from time immemorial have converted palaces into homes." It won't be the fault of the Home Making Centre if every man doesn't get his entitlings.

There will be lectures for home makers three nights a week throughout April, and medals and diplomas for those qualifying as competent.

Mrs. Rueta Day, the home economist, who says that a family of five can be fed on $15 a week, will show prospective brides how important a part nutrition, diet and menu-planning and executing play in happy home life.

Miss Emma D. Sanford is in charge of the department of home decoration; Mrs. Teresa Speed presides over the home service department. Miss Margaret Davidson will give a course in home lighting; Mrs. Gregory will give advice on the psychology of family life.

There are 425,000 women in the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, and it is their aim, through the Centre, "to disseminate for the benefit of the modern woman all the scientific knowledge that is available for the making of happy homes"—from saving the housewife's time to sweetening the housewife's temper. Surely an admirable endeavor! And, considering all the original masculine fuss about women's clubs, how so tenderly considerate of masculine comfort and happiness, the joke seems—not for the first time—to be on the men!

FIFTY-FIFTY WIFE

I'm just a fifty-fifty wife,
My home is never full of strife,
I'm never bored, and never blue,
I always have too much to do!

I sit and type, when I've the time,
Sometimes compose a little rhyme;
I rush from typing to the stew,
There always seems so much to do!

My children say they'd like some cake,
So I stop scribbling while I bake;
I like to give them something new,
Although I've always lots to do.

My husband gives me socks to mend,
I've other duties without end.
I write about my housework, too,
Though there are other things to do.

Two incomes do much more than one,
Besides, this job is lots of fun;
A part-time wife I am, 'tis true,
Yet how I love the things I do!

ESTHER L. SCHWARTZ.

PROFESSOR, HOW COULD YOU?

"My husband has told me that he had not smelled any liquor on a student's breath at his classes since 1920."—Mrs. Lewis Jerome Johnson, wife of a Harvard professor, testifying before the House Judiciary Committee.

Is Harvard, a woman wonders, on the same snooping basis as the Ford factory in Detroit and the dinners attended by Senator Brookhart in Washington?

WHERE?

Travel, travel, travel . . .
I wonder where we go.
I asked the wind, I asked the trail,
They answered: "We don't know."
Travel, travel, travel . . .
I asked the owl and the swallow.
They loped upon their way, and chirped:
"Just follow, follow, follow."
I asked a man and maiden . .
They laughed and turned away.
I asked the Earth. She answered:
"Clay!"

Add Hazards of Hospitality

A St. Louis woman has brought suit against her hostess for $200,000 because the guest slipped on the polished floor where the bridge tables were set. An English court has awarded another woman damages of $235 from her hostess because the latter slapped her on the back and asked hospitably, "How about some tea?" If this sort of thing keeps up, the only safeguard for any social function will be accident insurance.

A new planet swims into our ken—but what's worrying lots of women is the price to which sugar will go under the new tariff.

THEATRE FASHIONS By Helen Worden

PEACH satin lounging pajamas with diamond-shaped inserts of deep brown silk are worn by Mina Gombell in "Nancy's Private Affair." The sleeves are held in at the wrists by narrow bands of the brown satin. Heavy white georgette crepe fashions the simple dinner gown worn by Miss Gombell in the same play. It is untrimmed save for a narrow belt of starched georgette clasped about the waist by a buckle of crystal. For accesories, Miss Gombell wears black moire slippers and carries a black and white chiffon and lace handkerchief.

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, March.

Off to Sea

Along the waterfront of Saint Malo the air is heavy with the smell of fresh paint and tar these days. The fishing fleet is lying ready at the quays, waiting for the "Grand Pardon" in the church, to take the open for the annual venture to the banks of Newfoundland. The smacks are being loaded with food and water, for the fishers will not touch land again till the early fall, when they will come home just before the October storms begin to lash the Atlantic. Sometimes the tempests arrive early and overtake them on the homeward journey when the boats are filled with codfish. Then there is tragedy and a few more widows and orphans in Saint Malo. The thought of the home journey darkens the hour of departure. How many will return? The old church is heavy with the perfume of incense and innumerable candles burn about the statues of Our Lady, the "Star of the Sea." And presently, after a propitiatory mass, at which all the fishers and their families in their Sunday clothes assist, the clergy will go down to the waterside and bless the sea. Bless also those frail smacks with their names of feminine sweetness on which the rough seamen will sail out in a few days—"Notre Dame of the Waves," "Flower of Mary," "Hope of Mary," "Notre Dame of Saint Jouan," "Madiana," "Our Lady of Uronca." Casks of salt are rolled on board, boxes of hard-tack, salt pork. The poops and prows are gayly decorated with joycus and symbolic figures, which give the ships the appearance of dancing toys. The sea will soon wash away the decorations, for she does not permit of levity. And then one morning sails will be hoisted and the bells in the old cathedral will ring out a farewell to her children, and soon the smacks will be out of sight and then gloom will settle on the gray old town till that day in September when the first smack appears on the horizon and the silver bells will ring out a tumultuous welcome.

Dispute Revives

Maitre Henri Torres, one of the luminaries of the Parisian bar, who translated and adopted "The Trial of Mary Dugan" for the French stage, has just completed the translation of another play, this time from the German. The play in question is based upon the Dreyfus affaire and has met with great success in Berlin. What sort of reception it will receive in Paris is not difficult to imagine. From what is going on now it seems that the play is liable to arouse all the old passions that the famous trial evoked in the last years of the century. As Maitre Torres is a Jew—he acted as defender of Chaim Schwartzbart, the man who shot the Ukrainian hetman and pogromchik Petlura—the anti-Semitic royalists are already warming up to the fray. Maurras and Daudet are never in finer fettle than when they march against the Jews. They have announced in their paper that the Camelots du Roi, the King's Henchmen, their followers, who are more and more assuming the attitude of a Fascist militia in Paris, will know how to prevent the presentation of the play. Of course, no better opportunity has appeared for a long time to come back to the Dreyfus affaire and tell the younger generation their view of that distressing drama, which brought France to the brink of war and held her for five years in the grip of a threat of civil war. Major Guignet, a military gentleman of monarchist convictions, has just launched a book in which he reiterates the guilt of Capt. Dreyfus. As if this were not sufficient, another royalist, Jean Roget, has put out a similar volume with identical intent. The books have made a certain stir, and may be said to pave the way for a hilarious time when Maitre Torres produces his piece. Maurice Rostand, the son of the great Edmond, has been selected to play the chief role, in which he will represent Emile Zola, for Dreyfus himself does not actually step on the stage in the play. While the Camelots du Roi have sworn that they will not permit what they are pleased to call "a glorification of the Jewish traitor," the Prefect of Police is trying to persuade Maitre Torres to abandon the idea of reviving the Dreyfus affair in Paris.

Good to Know

When you overfill the lamp or oil stove and the kerosene runs on the rug, cover the spot immediately with cornmeal, rubbing it well into the rug. Let it remain two days, then brush off. If this has not effectually absorbed the oil, rub fuller's earth into the spot and after several days brush it off and the rug will no longer be stained.

When cleaning gloves use a brush. Put the gloves on your hand and begin by brushing the tips of the fingers. These are difficult to clean by rubbing. The brush is not as hard on the gloves as rubbing if you use a brush with fine but stiff bristles and brush lightly but briskly.

Too Many Toys

"MY CHILD has a room full of toys and he plays with each one for two minutes and then wails, 'What'll I do now, Mother? I've got nothing to do!'" complains a fond parent.

Isn't the trouble, probably, that the youngster has a room full of toys? How distracting for a little tot! Naturally, he runs from one plaything to another and appreciates none. Most of our children have too many toys!

"But what can I do?" many mothers question. "Every one who comes to the house brings my child a gift." How selfish adults are! We all love toys and besides we adore seeing little faces light up with glee! But we ought to be more thoughtful and realize what we are doing to the little ones. I once knew a youngster who met every visitor at the front gate with, "What did you bring me?" She had the getting habit pretty firmly established before she entered the kindergarten! Let us try to impress upon relatives and friends that they will do the children a kindness if they do not bring them gifts.

But if we are unsuccessful in our efforts and if the children are still deluged with toys, at least let us not leave all of them in the playroom. We can put most of the toys away, and when the children have exhausted the possibilities of the playthings they have, we can bring out others from their hiding place. We should leave out only a few things at one time!

And if we want our children to keep happily occupied we should get them have those things that will engross their interest. Will the mechanical toys that they wind up and then watch go round and round hold their attention for very long? Of course not! Children want to be active. They want playthings they can do something with. They want toys with which to build and construct, blocks and clay and such like. And they need toys for their imaginative play, such as dolls and beds and stoves and cowboy suits. So let us be very careful in our selection of the things we leave in the playroom, and, above all, let us be sure we do not leave too many!

"DAD, who is St. Patrick?"

"St. Patrick is the patron saint of Ireland."

"What's a patron saint?"

"A saint regarded as the special protector of a person, country, cause, &c."

"Why is St. Patrick the patron saint of Ireland?"

"Because he is looked upon as the special protector of Ireland."

"Why is he the special protector of Ireland?"

"Years and years ago he was a missionary to Ireland, and he did many wonderful works for the people."

"What did he do?"

"Well, among other things, it is said, he drove the snakes out of Ireland."

"Aren't there any snakes in Ireland?"

"Not a single one."

"Don't the Irish drink potheen?"

"Oh, go to bed."

Helping the School Child

By Emilie Hoffman

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

A MOTHER complains that the days are not long enough to get in all she has to do, "without giving up time to help with the education of the children," and she continues, "so I leave that all to the teacher. That is the business of the teacher and that is what we send our children to school for."

This is quite true but many parents are sufficiently interested in the education of their children to give them every opportunity for additional advantages. This does not necessarily require a sacrifice of time. However, when a school child is not keeping up with the grade the average parent will gladly sacrifice time to give the unfortunate student a chance to make good.

In mathematics, when help is required, this must be of a personal nature which may mean a sacrifice of time, but the parent who understands will know it is a worth while sacrifice if it means a chance for Sonny.

In geography, history and other subjects educational helps may be provided by the busy parent in the form of supplementary reading. Interesting books, many in gripping story form, are obtainable dealing with these subjects. If you do not care to purchase these arrange for the child's securing books from the library. The teacher or librarian will gladly give a list of books that will be helpful in the grade the child may be.

One high school lad, who made several double promotions during his elementary school career was asked how he did it and he replied, "I lay it all to my reading. My mother picked out the books that would help me in my studies as I went along through the grades. I learned a lot in that way and I was always able to talk in the class on whatever we were studying. She got me in the habit of using the encyclopaedia and that was a big help."

There should be reference books in every home where there are school children, and now that we have such excellent encyclopaedias, expressly arranged and profusely illustrated for children's use, parents should provide this great educational aid for their school children.

A good atlas is really a necessity in the home and it is another great help to the young knowledge seeker. He will eagerly look up the places he hears or reads about and he will trace routes of travel and mark the various industrial and other belts for you, &c. In fact you can make the use of both the encyclopaedia and the atlas very interesting to the young student and by encouraging him to use these and teaching him how to do this properly you will be establishing a habit that will be of vast benefit in the education of your child.

These helps will give your boys and girls an educational equipment that will enable them to compete successfully with their fellow pupils and success means enthusiasm and an incentive for best efforts.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

That crisp and crusty small bread with a hollow centre is the popover. Seldom enjoyed outside the home, this delicately flavored and textured hot bread lends itself to amateur cooking.

The recipe being a simple one, and the baking merely a matter of plenty of time and temperature, popovers may be attempted by any one willing to follow directions explicitly. The baking makes or mars the crispy puffs. Patience rather than impatience should be the ally of the popover specialist. A light, bubbly mixture poured into sizzling hot iron pan or glass custard cups—no others hold the heat so well—begins baking in a very hot oven. After half an hour the outsides have crisped and the insides dried out. For fifteen minutes the heat is kept at moderate.

NANCY DORRIS

As there are eggs a-plenty in the recipe no baking powder is needed in

DELICIOUS POPOVERS

Two eggs, well beaten
One cup milk
One-half teaspoon salt
One cup flour
One or two teaspoons melted butter
Oven temperature: 450 degrees for half hour; 350 degrees for fifteen minutes
Baking time—Forty-five minutes.
Yield: One dozen

Some cooks find that twenty minutes at the high temperature and fifteen at the second suffice for the popovers. The size of the pans has some bearing upon the baking time. More crispy popovers are possible with iron pans than any other: although some creditable ones have come from tin muffin pans.

The oven should be lighted before the culinary equipment is assembled. The temperature will then be right when the popovers are ready for the oven. The popover pans should be set in the oven to become sizzling hot.

Sift the flour and salt together and set aside on a plate. Melt the butter; the quantity may be increased to one tablespoon. Break the eggs in the mixing bowl and beat with a rotary beater until light and frothy. Then beat in the milk vigorously. Sift the flour and salt slowly into the liquids and beat two minutes. Last add the melted butter. The mixture should be full of bubbles.

Grease the smoking hot popover pans and set again in the oven to heat. Then pour the frothy mixture into the hot pans, about one-half full. Set in the very hot oven and do not disturb. In fifteen or twenty minutes look at them, reducing the heat so that at the end of half an hour it registers moderate. Continue baking after the temperature is moderate for ten or fifteen minutes, turning out the oven for the last five minutes of this time.

Slip the spatula around the popovers, lift to a heated serving plate and serve at once. Leave part of the batch in the oven (heat turned off) until wanted. Orange marmalade, black currant jam, grape jelly, strawberry preserves and honey are nice with the brown puffs.

For wholewheat or graham popovers, use one-third cup white flour and two-thirds cup wholewheat or graham flour instead of one full cup white flour required in the above recipe.

COMPROMISE ON TARIFF LOOMS

WASHINGTON, March 25.—UP—Coalitionists and regulars in the house entered into negotiations today for a new compromise on the tariff bill.

With both democrats and western republicans demanding separate votes on the 16 schedules in the bill passed by the senate yesterday, administration republicans indicated a willingness to meet them half way by allowing house roll calls on some controversial items.

Chairman Snell of the rules committee, which will decide what procedure is to be allowed in dealing with the senate measure, said he has not yet made up his mind. He indicated, however, he is willing to grant separate votes on some items.

Chairman Snell of the rules committee, which will decide what procedure is to be allowed in dealing with the senate measure, said he has not yet made up his mind. He indicated, however, he is willing to grant separate votes on some items.

When the tariff bill was originally before the house, Snell suggested a rule providing for separate votes on sugar, lumber, cement and brick but it was decided at a party caucus to vote on the bill as reported from the ways and means committee without considering separate schedules.

What the western republicans want particularly is a chance to adopt the senate rates on building material, which are lower than those passed by the house. By approving the house rates on these items they would be removed from the trading when the bill goes to conference. They also wish to make final the senate's farm rates which are somewhat higher than those passed by the house.

The western republicans and democrats have a big club in the farm debenture and non-flexible provision of the senate bill. Unless they get their way on rates they are in a position to threaten a formidable combination supporting these administrative features if the conference committee later appeals, as expected, to the house and senate for further instructions.

The senate meanwhile recessed for a week until next Tuesday.

HIT THE DECK APPEARING HERE

Although the stage version of "Hit the Deck" was admittedly one of Broadway's biggest hits, it only could suggest the immense scope, color and narrative appeal of Radio Pictures' screen version, opening today at the Fox-California theater.

For instance, the "Hallelujah" song on the stage was a solo. In the picture it has grown into a negro spiritualist meeting intrepreted by a chorus of 100 negro singers and dancers. Four new songs have been added to the original score.

Three of the largest motion picture sets ever built; a life-size village, a replica of the deck of a battleship and a negro tabernacle, by comparison were only suggested on the stage. As a finishing touch, "Hit the Deck" is partially screened in technicolor.

Never before has "Hit the Deck" been produced with a cast of such distinguished names. It reads like a blue book of the profession: Polly Walker, Broadway star; Jack Oakie, Hollywood's sensational comedian; Marguerita Padula, mammy singer de luxe; Roger Gray and Franker Woods of the original New York caset Ethel Clayton, June Clyde, Wallace MacDonald, Harry Sweet, George Ovey, black-face comic, Dell Henderson, Nate Slott, Andy Clark and Chas. Sullivan.

Luther Reed, director and Robert Kurrle cameraman, the team which produced "Rio Rita," Radio Pictures' sensational musical extravaganza, also teamed on "Hit the Deck."

Clues Probed In Murder Of Northern Girl

or lover might have been responsible for the killing.

Saw Couple

Supporting the first theory, officers reported the story of a witness, whose name they refused to divulge, who said he had seen a young couple seated in a coupe arguing violently. When this witness approached the couple the young woman said her friend was trying to "cut her throat out" but as the witness walked closer they seemed to end their quarrel.

The second theory seemed to be borne out by the story of Mrs. Edith Rodenberger, who lives at Klamath, five miles north of the place the body was found.

Mrs. Rodenberger told of an excited man driving up and inquiring if she had seen a red haired girl and a young fellow near there. He hinted the girl was running away from the youth.

Bullets Found

Sheriff John R. Breen of Del Norte county discovered a bullet from a 30 calibre revolver near the place the body was found Monday night as he was seeking clues late today.

Earlier Carl T. Wallace, Humboldt county physician, had determined that the woman died eight weeks ago from the wound in the head.

There was one other bit of definite undisputable evidence. The young woman had been carried at least 50 feet after she was shot. One of her shoes was found 50 feet away.

She was dressed as if she had lived in a city and to all centers of population on the Pacific coast went appeals to help in determining her name. Without this the mystery might never be solved, it was believed.

Herr Schnitzel Tells Lions All About Nothing

"Professor" Herman Schnitzel discussed distorted facts, factless facts, and current events of the day in his ungammatical but nevertheless enjoyable style yesterday at a meeting of the Lions club of Richmond. His "lecture" was something out of the ordinary for a discourse by a "professor." College would be fun if pupils had to listen to such a professor, according to Richmond Lions.

Herman Schnitzel was introduced by Guy Milnes, chairman of the day. Accordian and harp duets were presented by Mrs. Charles Overman and A. C. Rothrock. Mrs. Overman was also heard in several monologues.

Emphasis was laid by President A. B. Hinkley and Mayor Al Paulsen on the importance of the mass meeting to be held next Monday to arouse interest in the census.

H. H. Mylander announced the state Lions convention to be held at Stockton in May. Elaborate preparations are being made for this event.

The announcement by City Engineer Edward Hoffman that pile drivers were about to begin driving test piles on the Ford site met with acclamation at yesterday's meeting of the Lions club.

Why Natural Gas is a safe and healthful fuel for cooking, water heating, and care-free house heating

You, as one of our customers, no doubt are interested in knowing just what benefits Natural Gas can give you. Natural gas is clean; it gives healthful heat. It is safe, and it is inexpensive to use. Especially is it more economical to use than other fuels.

In fact, many of our customers have told us that their fuel bills for cooking, water heating, and house heating are often 50 per cent lower after Natural Gas has been turned on.

Furthermore, Natural Gas is a healthful fuel when burned in modern up-to-date appliances. Perhaps you recall the old portable or obsolete heating appliances which were connected with a flimsy rubber hose to a gas pipe. These appliances were not connected to a chimney and the results were often unpleasant. People blamed the gas fuel. As a matter of fact, the blame should really have been placed upon the poorly-designed appliances. To judge modern gas-fired equipment upon the basis of such obsolete equipment is like comparing coal oil lamps with modern electric lights.

Modern gas appliances, such as Radiantfires, Floor Furnaces, Basement Furnaces, Boilers and Conversion Boilers for coal or oil furnaces, give perfect, healthful, clean heating when properly installed and connected to the chimney.

The records of the National Board of Fire Underwriters show that three-fourths of the nation's annual preventable fire losses are caused by fire hazards that are eliminated when Natural Gas is used as a fuel. For example, the burned gases that go up the chimney are of relatively low temperature and consist principally of carbon dioxide which, itself, is a fire extinguisher. With Natural Gas there is no need to worry about the storage of fuel.

In those districts where the Pacific Gas and Electric Company recently turned on Natural Gas, physicians are recommending it for house heating because they know it is safe and gives healthful heat.

Natural Gas, therefore, is the ideal fuel for easy and safe automatic heating. Let us prove to you that no other fuel can compare with it in this respect.

We shall be pleased to give you additional facts about heating your home with Natural Gas, whether you wish to use it in your present furnace, or in a regular gas-fired furnace.

STREET ROLLER AGAIN GOES PLACES

The El Cerrito city street roller, which made a meteoric rise to fame by rolling down a hill and crashing over the curbstone into a house recently, has come before the public eye once more by crashing into a garage in El Cerrito.

The roller became stuck against a boulder on Manila avenue across from the city hall, and Fred Begerow, despairing of moving the six ton mountain of iron, went off in search of some bars to pry the boulder away, leaving the motor running.

No sooner had Begerow departed in search of the bars, then the roller merrily leaped the boulder that was hindering its progress, and galloped across the street into a garage.

How far it would have gone thru the garage is not known as Fire Chief Arthur Byrd of El Cerrito, leaped to the rescue and stopped the devastating roller just after it had crashed through the doors.

Begerow declared he was certain the roller was out of gear when he left it in search of something to pry away the boulder.

The roller leaped into the limelight in January, when it escaped from Begerow in Mira Vista and crashed over the curbing into the side of a house.

Here's Real Relief From Rheumatic Pains And Agony

IN "4 TO 48 HOURS YOU GET REST AND COMFORT AGAIN.

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of these persistent, nerve-racking pains is to get a bottle of ALLENRU SPECIAL FORMULA NO. 2. Be sure you get NO. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue taking them for two or three days more and thus prevent an early return of the torture.

La Moine Drug Co. says these little wonder-working capsules must banish all pain and torture in 5 days or money cheerfully refunded.

DISCOVERY OF NEW PLANETS CLAIMED

ROME, Mar. 25—(UP)— Rafael Bendani, woodcarver, cabinet maker, seismologist and claimant to the discovery of four new planets, declared today that the area of the solar system is 50 times greater than hitherto believed.

This self-educated scientist said that by his own methods developed in his cellar observatory at Faenza, he had calculated facts about the sun and its huge satellites that were far beyond human comprehension.

All these years, he told the United Press, the world had been content to think the planet known as the earth had only seven sister planets, the farthest of which was Neptune.

12 Planets

As a matter of fact, he said, there are 12 planets altogether, all four of his new ones are far beyond Neptune and constitute surprising new links in the system of worlds revolving around the sun.

Suppose you call Benadi's four new planets W., X., Y. and Z. In this case X., the second plane beyond Neptune, would coincide with the planet X. recently discovered at Flagstaff, Ariz.

Whereas the earth goes around the sun once a year and Neptune once in 165 years, Planet X is so far away that it takes 360 years to make its great circle and X takes 700 years, according to Benandi.

Planet Y is still farther from the sun and Z is so far distant that it requires about 3,000 years to complete the circuit, Bendani said.

New Record

Planet Z not only holds the long- distance record but is much greater than any planet hitherto recorded, the cellar astronomer said. It is more than twice as large as the giant Jupiter and is 2,700 times as large as the earth.

"If you could imagine the earth the size of a child's playing marble my last planet would be the size of a basketball," Bendandi explained.

"The physical condition of these planets, since they are so far away from the sun, are the least developed and are not concentrated towards the centers as are the earth and Mars.

Many Doubtful

It is silly to speak of habitation upon them. They are embryonic millions of years behind the earth. Their evolution will require still many millions of years.

While other astronomers were inclined to doubt Bendandi's planetary discoveries, he said this was because they did not know his system.

"My method is totally different from the usual calculations," he explained. "I have taken another road. But when I have made my discovery I proved it by mathematical methods used by all astronomers. Thus I proved the area of the solar system was greater than can be imagined by meager humans. It is 50 times greated than at present concieved."

GEORGE WICKERSHAM, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission recently made his report to the president.

MANY SUFFER IN MIDWESTERN BLIZZARD

fallen and it was expected to continue until morning.

Autos Stalled

Automobile travel was almost impossible. Boulevards were lined for miles with stalled passenger cars and trucks. Braver motorists were involved in almost innumerable wrecks in their attempts to creep through the snow. One crashed into a fire plug and flooded a portion of the loop. Another ran through a plate glass window. A third, driving a truck loaded with cattle crashed into a bridge. The frightened animals ran mooing into the storm. Policemen turned cowboys to round them up.

All highways leading into Chicago were blocked. Scores of motorists were marooned in nearby villages. Trains were hours late.

Animals Suffer

Half frozen jungle beasts, crazed by the storm, added to the difficulties in the New York Central yards when a circus arrived from winter quarters in Peru, Ind., for its first performance of the year. Topical animals in open cages were hastily covered with canvas before being removed from cars. Performers aided roustabouts in hurrying their charges to shelter.

A carload of polar bears were left in the open. They apparently were having the time of their lives.

The gale from off the lake sent frothing waves crashing over boulevards and against foundations of great apartment houses along the shore. Many basements were flooded.

Power and telephone lines were blown down along the north shore. Some suburbs were without electric light throughout the night.

Tens of thousands of workers barred from service transportation by the blizzards stampeded on the Loop platforms of the elevated system tonight.

Scores of women fainted in the rush to reach trains which required more than an hour slowly moving foot by foot, to circle the Loop.

Windows were shattered as the milling mobs, surging forward in desperate, needless attempts to board the cars, jammed against the sides of the trains.

Traffic on the streets almost was at a standstill. Deep, drifting snow had halte dmost trolley and bus transportation hours before.

Virtually no effort was made to remove the snow as the blizzards continued to pile it into the streets.

GRID RULES UNCHANGED FOR 1930

NEW YORK, March 25.—UP—Football in 1930 will be played almost the same as in 1929, except under a new and simplified code of rules.

The rules have been reduced from 29 to 13, Secretary W. S. Langford of the football rules committee announced today, and three minor changes made, as follows:

1.—The count measuring the shift has been increased from four to six.

2.—Any official may report a foul but the referee will act as final judge in case of conflict of testimony or opinion.

3.—All backward passes and fumbles which go out of bounds between the goal lines will hereafter be treated alike and will belong to the player who last touched the ball in the field of play or end zone.

To curb some unsportsmanlike tendencies, the committee suggested that players refrain from using equipment similar in color to the ball. Last season some teams abused the privilege of playing with a white ball at night by wearing white jerseys. If such practices continue a rule will be adopted in 1931 making it mandatory to wear jerseys and headgears of contrasting color to the ball.

Thus for the first time since the football rules committee was formed in 1906, there will be no major changes in the game. The three minor changes made do not alter the sense of the rules used last season.

When the ten members of the committee proper and seven other advisory representatives gathered for their closed meeting at Adsecon, N. J., last week-end, Secretary Langford reported today that the first business was to ascertain what, if any, changes in the rules were desirable.

"Members representing the eight geographical districts of the country reported that the sentiment of their constituents was that the code of 1929 was satisfactory and that the present balance between offense and defense should be preserved." Secretary Langford's report said.

The committee devoted most of its attention to the final draft of the re-arranged rules which have been in preparation for the past two years.

Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

DON'T SPIT !
SPITTING SPREADS DISEASE SCIENCE CONDEMNS IT DECENCY FORBIDS IT
The Law Makes It Punishable
DONT SPIT!
BOARD OF HEALTH

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The spitter is a beast. The law says "NO!" to his vile and vicious habit. But, for every spitter caught, there are hundreds who escape . . . hundreds who still roll cigars with filthy fingers—and spit on the ends! It is a fact that more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

CHAPTER I

The man on the mosquito-netted bed slowly opened his eyes and at once was painfully aware he had been tremendously drunk. His head ached as only dead alcohol can cause a head to ache. His throat burned as though a flame dwelt there.

With slow, uncertain vision he took in his whereabouts, discovering that he was in his bed at the little New Guinea settlement's one hotel. The mosquito-net had been tucked in carefully about him. The open doorway made a frame for an oblong glimpse of smooth sea blue like sapphires, and tall palms edging a beach crossed by green and flowering tide-vines; and from the angle of the palm-shadows lying on the sand-like purple fingers he knew it for early morning. The air was laden with the fresh odor of the morning sea. Along the beach natives called one to another desultorily, and out from the shore a canoeman chanted a fishing-song.

Then came a sound which startled the man on the bed and told him he was not alone—the sound of a woman's sobbing, part-suppressed; and, turning his head, he saw, sitting near the bed, the brown-haired daughter of the house, sitting with head bowed in hands.

"I am sorry, Miss Blackney," he said. "I am ashamed of myself—utterly."

Ordinarily, David Wade would have seen little of which to be violently ashamed in the fact that he should have celebrated his arrival at Samora from the gold-fields of the interior with a drinking-bout. After so many months of primordial conditions, of isolation and dangers and hardships, arrival in civilization demanded celebration—even the civilization of Samora, which with only a hundred or two white residents and wholly devoid of theatres, sports, and most social amenities, was but a pretended civilization, and left celebrators little to do save drink.

But in this case it was different. For some unrevealed reason, Stella Blackney had endeavored to end the celebrating before it had gone very far, with the utmost sincerity pleading with him to cease; and when he refused to take her seriously, not being in a condition to take anything seriously, she closed the bar to him and his companions—a schooner-captain and mate who, after a long spell at sea, were also celebrating arrival in this civilization of sorts. Whereupon, wondering at this refusing of good business, and declaring the girl a temperance reformer in strange guise, the three of them went along the beach to the place of a storekeeper licensed to sell liquor wholesale, and continued their bout among the palms.

Wade wished now he had taken her advice, and told her so. She seated herself again, and his brightening intelligence told him she was making strenuous effort at the full regaining of her self-control.

"I must have been pretty bad," he said, with an unsatisfactory attempt at a smile.

"You were indeed." Despite the directness of the remark, there was a certain colorlessness in the tone of it.

He passed a hand wearily across his brow.

"A regular binge! I don't remember going to bed last night, or even coming back here."

"It wasn't last night," said Stella. "It was the night before."

And then, unheeding his astonishment, she said she had been told by natives that the three white newcomers were on the beach in front of the store, a case of liquor between them, shouting, singing, dancing, madder with liquor than ever they had seen white men before, and that some time during the night she had gone to see for herself.

"I can't tell how it hurt me to see you like that," she said. "I could have cried." She paused, and he saw that pain lived deeply in her eyes. "Perhaps I did cry."

"At daylight I went back. You were all quiet enough then—stretched on the sand, asleep. I had some natives carry you here."

"I say, that was very good of you," he murmured.

"Then I put you to bed."

"You—yourself?"

"You've slept, like a dead man, twice round the clock," she went on hurriedly. Then:

"You were carrying a good deal of money, weren't you?"

"Yes—about six hundred pounds—the money I got for my gold-dust, you know. Why?"

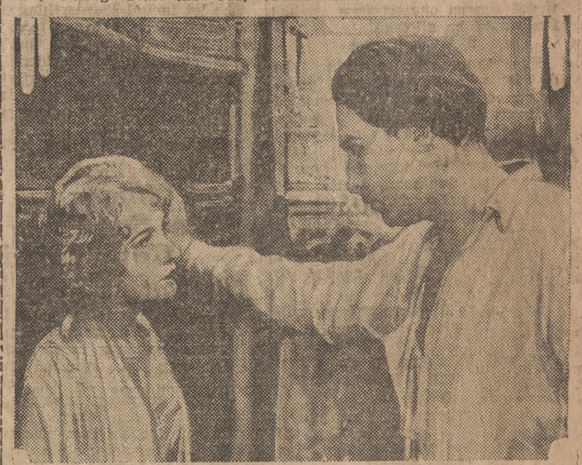
"Because you haven't a cent now."

Shocked alm st to complete sobriety, he sat up, asking what she meant.

'As you lay unconscious on the beach you were robbed," said Stella. "That's the way I reckon it out. Now, lie down again." She strove to press him back on the bed. He resisted her efforts easily.

"Are you sure?"

"Quite sure," she told him. "Please don't get excited. You must rest—"



"And now I'm completely broke! Its' a beautiful mess!"

"Who was it?" he demanded harshly, and swung his feet to the floor. "Have you any idea?"

"O'Shane."

"The storekeeper!"

She inclined her head slightly.

"You think he took it?" Wade asked.

"I'm not certain, of course," Stella answered, in the same half-loud tone. "I didn't actually see him take it. But I—I—" She lowered her eyes a moment.

"I happen to know the kind of man he is," she went on. "He—well, he would not be above giving you bad grog, purposely. . . . I'll send in a boy with some breakfast for you." She moved to the door.

"I don't want to eat," he called after her. "You are quite sure it's gone—all of it? There's nothing in my clothes?"

At once he regretted the question; it seemed to him there was a touch of indelicacy in thus alluding to the fact that she had put him to bed.

But without hint of embarrassment she told him she was sure, that she had made careful search.

"But I have set inquiries on foot in a quiet way, and perhaps you will get it back. Mea..while you must take things easily and not worry. I want you to get well as quickly as you can," she ended, with a little forced smile.

"That is very good of you, Miss Blackney," said Wade. "But advice to take things easily is hard to accept. That money was my all. My gold-claim there in the interior is exhausted, and I came here intending to go on to the Solomons or somewhere, and having a try at planting or trading for a change. I am not a very successful miner, you know."

He gave an ironical laugh.

"And now I'm completely broke! It's a beautiful mess!"

The girl nodded her head in an assent charged with grief.

"It is indeed! Oh, why did you go on this bout?" He noticed that her hands were tightly clenched. "I—I so wanted you not to. More so than you can have any idea!"—this last as though she said it to herself.

For the moment he was less concerned with the loss of his money than he was with the fact of the girl's distress. He was feeling too ill. Besides, women only upset a man's peace of mind, and he didn't want his peace of mind upset.

But after a little reflection he decided that it wasn't love that was at the bottom of her concern. It seemed to be something deeper and more profound, if anything could be deeper and more profound than love.

For a time he sat there, endeavoring to smooth the tangle of his thoughts, and failing utterly.

5 NEW CENSUS ENUMERATORS ALLOTTED

Five census enumerators for Richmond will be added to the 16 already appointed, according to word received yesterday from Congressman Charles F. Curry.

The additional enumerators wer alloted to Richmond when it became known that one worker would have a district to cover which had a population estimated at 12,000.

Monday night at 8:30, a mass meeting of representatives of the service clubs, civic and fraternal organizations of Richmond, will be held in the city hall to discuss plans for obtaining a full census of the population of Richmond.

It is asserted that at least six enumerators will be needed to cover this district.

The importance of these questions will be explained at the mass meeting Monday night.

Police, still lacking a tangible clue to continue their investigations, were balked again today when the bullet which struck the watchman was submitted to Prof. E. O. 1200 Gallons Rum Destroyed

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 25—(UP)—Looking very much like soldiers in gas masks, a squad of Federal "prohis", attacked a large army of bottles today.

The mask-like appearance was caused by the men wearing goggles and padded gloves to prevent being cut by flying glass when they destroyed with axes and picks some 1200 gallons of liquors, fine and otherwise, collected during raids of the past year.

The lot includes everything from imported absinthe taken from the rum ship Quadra, to "bathtub booze" siezed in local raids.

The demolition squad's activities were cenered at the city dump where the cases of liquor were transported by truck.

No liquor was reported lost en route.

FITTS HALTS JULIAN OIL TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—UP—New complications entered the forthcoming Julian Petroleum jury bribing trials today when District Attorney Buron Fitts protested against appointment of Superior Judge Marshall F. McComb to try the six defendants who had pleaded not guilty a few minutes earlier.

"If this case goes before Judge McComb, I'll refuse to prosecute," Fitts shouted.

"Very well," Presiding Judge Walton Wood sad. "I'll appoint a special prosecutor and see that the case is prosecuted. The court's appointment stands."

Fitts claimed that Jacob Berman, alias Jack Bennett, one of the six defendants, had refused to testify before the grand jury in return for immunity because he believed Judge McComb "prejudiced."

"Everything O. K."

Recently, Judge McComb refused to dismiss bribery charges against Berman and Ben Getzoff in another case.

Fitts said that he had taken Berman before the grand jury, but that the former Julian official had refused to talk, saying he feared he would incriminate himself "under the circumstances."

Later today, Fitts and Judge Wood were called before the grand jury. The grand jury foreman announced afterward that "everything is all right. Fitts had been working all night."

However, when Fitts, left the hall of Justice tonight, he reiterated that he "will try no Julian case before Judge McComb."

"My hands are tied and the investigation is ended for the present. I can only wait until Judge Wood changes his decision, if he does. The responsibility in this matter rests with him. I repeat, I can make no progress; my hands are tied."

Trial April 2

In addition to Jacob Berman, those who pleaded not guilty to a charge of having conspired to bribe jurors in the original trial of those accused of wrecking the oil company were:

His brother, Louis Berman; S. C. Lewis, former Julian president; Louis Krause, private detective, and John Groves and Frank Grider, jurors. Lewis and the Bermans were defendants in the original trial and were acquitted.

All except Grider were ordered to trial on April 21. Grider had not yet retained counsel.

LABOR FIGHTS NOMINATION OF PARKER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 25— UP)—A fight by labor against the nomination of John J. Parker to the supreme court was promised today. A decision he wrote in 1927, upholding a drastic injunction against union coal miners forbidding them to violate so-called "Yellow Dog contracts between non-union West Virginia companies and their employees is the basis of the opposition.

These contracts, hoted by union labor and forbidden by state law in Wisconsin, provided that no employee shall join a union while working for the company.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor notified Chairman Norris of the Senate Judiciary committee, which is considering Parker's nomination, that they wished to oppose the North Carolina federal circuit court judge's promotion at the hands of President Hoover. A. F. of L. leaders probably will appear before the judiciary committeee, composed of Senators Overman, Borah and Waerman, which moved yesterday to inquire into the nomination. No date has yet been set for hearings, but action is expected within the next ten days.

Some observers foresaw opposition, particularly by western Republicans, and a senate debate as fierce as that over the nomination of Chief Justice Hughes last month.

Parker's decision, concurred in by the other two judges of the court was delivered in April, 1927, in an appeal by the United Mine Workers of America. Federal District Judge McClintic previously granted the Red Jacket consolidated Coal and Coke company, and some 300 other Sothern West Virginia non-union mine companies, injunctions forbidding union ment to induce or persuade non-union men to "break their employment contracts," these contracts pledged the workers not to join a union, so that the act merely soliciting members violated the contracts.

Parker's opinion upheld the injunction, asserting the mine workers were guilty of conspiracy to obstruct intersate commerce by interfering with non- union mines.

4 POWER NAVY PACT SEEN AT MEET

garding such a pact was established a few weeks ago it was pointed out the United States had no objection to entering that kind of agreement as it already was a party to a number of treaties which would involve consultation if abrogation were threatened.

"The United States will not, however, enter any treaty, consultative or otherwise where there is danger of it obligation being understood as involving a promise to render armed assistance or to give protection by force to another nation," the statement said.

NEW HOPES FOR PARLEY

WASHINGTON, March 25.—UP—New hope for the London naval conference rose here tonight on receipt of press dispatches reporting prospective resumption of conferences among delegates of the five powers and the scheduling of a plenary session next week.

At the same time it was learned President Hoover is much concerned over criticism from American peace groups to the effect the United States is blocking success at London by refusing to enter a consultative pact.

The position here it is learned, is that thus far no power at London has indicated a desire for such a mild proposal. The feeling is that on the basis of indications to date not a single item could be shaved from naval programs by such an agreement. Any stronger form such as a military guarantee would be entirely unthinkable in Washington, it is learned.

Reports from London to the effect that Secretary Stimson is consideirng a proposal for a consultative pact are without confirmation here. It is known strong senate opposition exists to such a step and that any treaty brought back with such a feature would be subjected to terrific bombardment. There has been serious division in the American delegation over the advisability of risking such a challenge by the senate.

There are eight bars, which, if placed end for end, would cover two city blocks.

The Eurcpa is equipped with a large swimming pool, laid with blue-green tile, with lights set under the water. There is a shooting gallery made to resemble a forest, and a movie theater showing first run pictures. There are several libraries containing, in all, 2000 books.

Tradition

Long before the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, a cultured and courageous Spanish civilization had placed its stamp on California. During this period there grew up a tradition that today finds its expression in the names, in the architecture, and in the life of most of our cities.

The vigor of the Forty-Niners created a new and aggressive civilization. Into it they blended all that was most valuable from the days of Spanish influence. On the foundations of the past, they built a California that was destined to take a leading place in the Union of the States.

Institutions such as the Bank of America, whose history extends from the pioneer days, are custodians of tradition. It is their responsibility to carry on the work so ably begun.

Californians of today find in the Bank of America an institution whose roots are deep —whose present and future are pledged to the development of California

The same initiative that established the missions as outposts of civilization, that carried the American flag to the shores of the Pacific, is today building a greater California on the firm foundations of the past.
